To TRAVELERS.—We beg to suggest to travelers about departing from Columbia, that they would confer one of the greatest of benefits upon a suffering community by communicating their purpose of departure, seasonably, to the Postmaster, Mr. Glass, or to Capt. Stanley, at the Guard House; especially when they design to travel in those directions upon which there is as yet no mail line established. Many a refugee would desire to transmit to friends and relatives intelligence of his situation, and through this medium convey the knowledge of his need, for which his kindred and friends may find relief. Will the considerate and humane wayfarer reflect upon this suggestion, and afford the desired facilities to those who remain in exile!

"PAY-DAY" OF THE NATION.—The Yankee Senate have, by solemn resolution, declared that they will never, never, never pay the debt of the Confederate States. They might have added, with equal solemnity, the resolution never to pay their own. The blue backs and green-backs stand very equal chances in the coming round of the national pay-day, and Confederate notes, on the attainment of our independence, will be paid, when the green-backs, in that event, never can be. We shall then have the means, but Yankeeedom not. It is to make us pay their debt that they are now fighting.

The Emperor Napoleon, who was known as a clever author long before he became an Emperor, has just published the first volume of a life of Julius Cæsar, in a sumptuous quarto. It is illustrated by a portrait of the great Roman, to whom, we are told, the flattering skill of the artist has enabled him to give a strong family resemblance to Napoleon. We shall be curious to study the likeness and read the work.

CHATEAUX IN SPAIN.—The lands of the Southern States are duly mapped and offered for sale at auction in New York. The purchasers will locate, no doubt, in nubibus, rather than in Mississippi. They will buy—caveat emptor—the pig in the poke. To guarantee the buyer, Lincoln will be required to furnish an army of bayonets for the covering of every hen-coop.

Alfred Manigault, a native of Charleston, of the 4th South Carolina Cavalry, died recently at Winnsboro, in his twenty-fifth year.

Lost Silver and Jewelry.

A TRUNK, containing Silver, and other articles of value, was left in Columbia at the passenger depot by Mr. Winthrop, trustee of the estate of T. S. Bulow. The mercurial enemy entered Columbia, the trunk was opened and the contents divided among our soldiers, who were then evacuating the city. Some of the jewelry having come recently to light, I am encouraged to advertise, in the hope of receiving some of the silver. Among the articles not marked are several Seal and Diamond Rings; a Diamond Breast-pin, half moon; a Gold Cup, Spoon and Saucer, in Morocco case; two Cups, marked "T. L. B." and "G. C. B." the rest of the silver marked "G. L. B." or "Bulow," and also "M. C. B." Any information will be gratefully received and a liberal reward paid for the recovery of any of the lost property by
M. CAROLINE BULOW,
Guardian of T. S. and T. C. Bulow.
